

Contributors

MADHU DUBEY is Associate Professor in English and Africana Studies at Brown University. She is author of Black Women Novelists and the Nationalist Aesthetic and Signs and Cities: Black Literary Postmodernism.

W. LAWRENCE HOGUE is Professor of English at the University of Houston. He is the author of numerous books, most recently The African American Male, Writing, and Difference: A Polycentric Approach to African American Literature, Criticism, and History. He is completing a critical study entitled Postmodernism, The African American and The Global Periphery, and American and African American Narratives: Issues of Otherization.

SHERI I. HOEM is Associate Professor of English and American Studies at the University of Idaho. Her articles on postmodern literature and critical theory have appeared in Diacritics, Paragraph, Textual Practice, and African American Review.

NICOLE KING is Associate Professor of Literature at the University of California, San Diego. She is the author of C.L.R. James and Creolization: Circles of Influence.

JAMES KYUNG-JIN LEE is an Assistant Professor of English and Asian American Studies at the University of Texas at Austin. He is currently completing a book project entitled Urban Triage: Racial and Urban Crises in Contemporary U.S. Fiction.

CAROLE ANNE TAYLOR is Professor in English and African American/American Cultural Studies at Bates College. Her most recent book is The Tragedy and Comedy of Resistance: Reading Modernity through Black Women's Fiction. She is currently at work on a project that examines the critiques in women's writing of dominant views in mediascapes.

CHRISTINE LEVECQ teaches in the Department of American Thought and Language at Michigan State University. She has published articles in American, African American, and postcolonial studies. Currently, she is at work on a book that explores visions of the nation in the contemporary historical novel.

JERRY PHILLIPS is an Associate Professor of English and American Studies at the University of Connecticut. He is the author of articles on Herman Melville, Matthew Arnold, Thorstein Veblen, and Richard Price. He is currently at work on a study of Edmund White.

ERIK DUSSERE is the author of Balancing the Books: Faulkner, Morrison, and the Economies of Slavery. He currently teaches at Catholic University. ALMA JEAN BILLINGSLEA BROWN is Associate Professor of English at Spelman College. She is author of Crossing Borders through Folklore: African American Women's Fiction and Art and has current research interests in black women's writing in Africa and the diaspora as well as women in the modern civil rights movement. RICHARD PEARCE is Book Review Editor of Novel and Professor Emeritus at Wheaton College. He is author of The Politics of Narration. His current research interest is American Indian ledger art. EDWARD BRUNNER teaches English at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale. Cold War Poetry is his most recent publication. ALEXANDER BAIN is a Ph.D. candidate at Rutgers University.