

Contributors

LISA FLUET is Assistant Professor of English at Boston College and is currently a visiting fellow at the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. Her essays have appeared in Twentieth-Century Literature, The Minnesota Review, and in a Duke University Press collection, Bad Modernisms. She is currently working on a manuscript titled Vast Plans: New Class Modernism in the Twentieth Century.

REBECCA L. WALKOWITZ is Associate Professor of English at Rutgers University. She is the author of Cosmopolitan Style: Modernism Beyond the Nation (2006) and editor or co-editor of seven books, including Immigrant Fictions: Contemporary Literature in an Age of Globalization (2007) and Bad Modernisms (with Douglas Mao, 2006). Her essays have appeared in several anthologies and in journals such as PMLA, MLQ, ELH, and Modern Drama. In June 2008, she will become Co-Editor of Contemporary Literature.

ALEXANDER M. BAIN is Assistant Professor of English at the University of Oklahoma. He is at work on a book tentatively titled Making the Heart of the World: Patriotism and Transatlantic Print Culture from Versailles to Bandung.

BRUCE ROBBINS is Professor of English and Comparative Literature at Columbia University. He is the author of Upward Mobility and the Common Good: Toward a Literary History of the Welfare State (2007); Feeling Global: Internationalism in Distress (1999); Secular Vocations: Intellectuals, Professionalism, Culture (1993); and The Servant's Hand: English Fiction from Below (1986). He has edited The Phantom Public Sphere (1993) and Intellectuals: Aesthetics, Politics, Academics (1990) and co-edited Cosmopolitics: Thinking and Feeling beyond the Nation (1998).

JEFFREY NUNOKAWA is Professor of English and Associate Chair of the English Department at Princeton University. He is the author of Tame Passions of Wilde: The Styles of Manageable Desire (2003) and The Afterlife of Property: Domestic Security and the Victorian Novel (2001).

MICHAEL DAVIDSON is Professor of Literature at UC San Diego. His most recent book, Concerto for the Left Hand: Disability and the Defamiliar Body, is forthcoming from the University of Michigan Press. HANA WIRTH-NESHER is Professor of English and American Studies at Tel Aviv University. She is the author of Call It English: The Languages of Jewish American Literature (2005) and City Codes: Reading the Modern Urban Novel (1996). JAMES DONALD is Professor of Film Studies at the University of New South Wales. He is the author of Imagining the Modern City (1999) and Sentimental Education: Schooling, Popular Culture and the Regulation of Liberty (1992) and co-editor of the SAGE Handbook of Film Studies (forthcoming), Close Up, 1927-1933: Cinema and Modernism (1999), Fantasy and the Cinema (1989), and Politics and Ideology (1986). He is currently working on a study of popular cosmopolitanism between the Wars. JANE ELLIOTT is a Lecturer in English at the University of York, England. Her book, Popular Feminist Fiction as American Allegory: Representing National Time, is forthcoming from Palgrave. NAOMI MANDEL is Associate Professor of English and Comparative Literature at the University of Rhode Island. She is the author of Against the Unspeakable: Complicity, the Holocaust, and Slavery (2006) and co-editor of Novels of the Contemporary Extreme (2006). J. MARINA DAVIES is Visiting Assistant Professor of French and Italian at Colby College. Her current projects include a study of language and utopian space in Albert Cohen's novels and an article on Renée Dunan. CHERYL L. WALKER is Richard Armour Professor of Modern Languages at Scripps College and the author of several books on American literature and culture, most recently, God and Elizabeth Bishop: Meditations on Religion and Poetry (2005) and Indian Nation: Native American Literature and Nineteenth-Century Nationalism (1997). PRASEEDA GOPINATH is Assistant Professor of English at SUNY Binghamton. She is currently at work on a manuscript, Scarecrows of Chivalry: The Literature of (Post) Imperial Masculinities. EVAN WATKINS is Professor of English at UC Davis. He is the author of numerous articles and books in cultural studies and critical theory—most recently, Class Degrees: Vocational Education and Class Formation in the U.S. (forthcoming).