should be carried out. In cases of suspected FB inhalation tracheo-bronchoscopy needs to be added. It is worth remembering that FBs can migrate both to a more distal portion of the digestive system and also transmurally into the mediastinum and other intrathoracic structures. Therefore, early diagnosis and treatment is essential if potentially hazardous or life threatening situations are to be avoided.

References

