Special Issue on the First Course in Accounting

Part 2

The primary objective of the special issue on the first course in accounting is to provide useful material that will enhance accounting curricula and better prepare those who are entering the business world. The response to this project was tremendous. As a result, it required two editions. This is the second part of the special issue on the first course in accounting.

I appreciate the incredible effort of the guest editor, Jack Wilkerson, and the many authors that contributed to the project.
