

MIND TO MIND

Creative writing that explores the abstract side of our profession and our lives

Stephen T. Harvey, M.D., Editor

Complications Arise

Stewart Manley, J.D.

The Spanish begin their questions with an ¿
They let us know from the beginning how the thought will end
How does it feel to not know
Where your last step will fall
To relinquish to really relinquish
To let the root relax
To stop yelling listen to your heart breathe
To stop doing to really stop doing whatever it is that we do
To wonder where your thought will end
How does it feel
To bid farewell to this reality and welcome another
To place your fate your entire fate in the hands of a stranger
To let the anesthesiologist do her work
To reverse the question marks