BEQUESTS ARE A MAJOR SOURCE OF SUPPORT IN THE FIGHT AGAINST DIABETES

Professional Members of the Association and other Journal subscribers are aware that among the agencies their patients can help through bequests there are few that serve a health need as great and as urgent as that served by the American Diabetes Association.

As Journal readers well know, diabetes has become the fifth leading cause of death by disease and the second leading cause of new cases of blindness. Indeed, there is hardly an area of medicine which diabetes does not affect.

Diabetics have made possible much of our progress through bequests and it is likely that many of your patients would welcome the suggestion of including the Association in their wills. Members of the Professional Section themselves have contributed to the Association's progress in this way.

The suggested wording for bequests is as follows:

"I hereby give and bequeath to the American Diabetes Association, Inc., a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Ohio and having its principal offices at 18 East 48th Street, New York, New York 10017, the sum of _____ dollars."

The above is for the general purpose of the Association. If a bequest is intended for a specific purpose this should be stated.

The wording suggested for a residual bequest is as follows:

"all the rest, residue and remainder of my estate I give to the American Diabetes Association, Inc., a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Ohio and having its principal offices at 18 East 48th Street, New York, New York 10017."

The testator should have the guidance of his or her attorney in incorporating either of these forms into his will.
