Membership in the Society of Architectural Historians

The Society of Architectural Historians was founded in 1940 to advance the knowledge and understanding of the history of architecture, design, landscape, and urbanism worldwide. The Society serves scholars, professionals in allied fields (including architecture, historic preservation, and planning), and the interested general public by:

- Sponsoring the pursuit and presentation of scholarly research;
- Sponsoring forums for the presentation of scholarly research and exchange of ideas;
- Providing publications that disseminate scholarly work, professional information, and general information related to the field and of interest to the public;
- Acknowledging outstanding scholarly accomplishments in the field;
- Fostering scholarship, research, and education about the history of the built environment;
- Organizing study tours of significant buildings and sites both in the United States and abroad;
- Supporting the preservation of historic places and cultural heritage.

The Society is a constituent member of the American Council of Learned Societies. Membership is open to all who are interested in furthering the study, enjoyment, and preservation of architecture and its related arts. In addition to receiving the Society's quarterly journal JSAH and the newsletter, members are eligible to attend the annual meeting, annual architectural tours abroad, and annual tours to regions of particular architectural interest in the United States or Canada. Subscription to the JSAH and the newsletter are available only with membership in the Society. Classes of membership are as follows:

In his latest book Branko Mitrović examines the philosophical background of Leon Battista Alberti's architectural theory. The study is based on a comprehensive survey of the central concepts of Alberti's architectural system, such as lineamenta, forma, figura, spatium, concinnitas and ingenium, in the context of Renaissance Aristotelianism. Specific questions discussed pertain to Alberti's views on the nature, perception and evaluation of architectural works as well as his views on space and the functioning of the human soul. The book presents Alberti as a systematic thinker, well aware of the philosophical background of the problems of architectural theory, which he articulated in predominantly Aristotelian terms.

The Domestic Architecture of Benjamin Henry Latrobe

Michael W. Fazio and Patrick A. Snadon

This deeply researched and abundantly illustrated study catalogs all of Latrobe's domestic commissions, offering an authoritative treatment of the concepts, designs, and unique interior and exterior features of his houses.

Benjamin Henry Latrobe, an English émigré and the first professional architect of international stature to practice in the United States, invented an American house type for the new democratic republic. Latrobe responded to American manners and climate by producing what he called his "rational house," an application of Enlightenment thinking to the design of a proper living environment for the citizens of the world's most recent democracy.

Establishing a new benchmark in Latrobe studies, Michael W. Fazio and Patrick A. Snadon extend their analysis to Latrobe's training and career in England and Europe, his principles of design, and his methods of architectural practice.

Camouflage
Neil Leach
“Neil Leach gives new meaning to the term camouflage in this brilliant treatise on aesthetic practice. This eloquent reframing of architecture's means of identity production is an optimistic appeal for design as a potential agent in our interactions with the world, both physically and mentally. A persuasive rewriting of architectural discourse, Camouflage is performative theory at its best.”
— Marc Angélil, Professor of Architecture, ETH Zurich
248 pp., 18 illus. $24.95 paper

Le Corbusier's Hands
André Wogenscky translated by Martina Millà Bernad
Le Corbusier's assistant and fellow architect remembers his mentor in a series of concise and poetic reflections.
96 pp., 6 illus. $14.95

Japan-ness in Architecture
Arata Isozaki translated by Sabu Kohso edited by David B. Stewart foreword by Toshiko Mori
“These texts . . . . transcend theoretical trends and offer a discourse about essential issues in architecture.”
—from the foreword by Toshiko Mori
360 pp., 54 illus. $29.95

Built upon Love
Architectural Longing after Ethics and Aesthetics
Alberto Pérez-Gómez
“In this book, as in Architecture and the Crisis of Modern Science, Pérez-Gómez rewrites the history of architecture. His aim is not to replace reason with desire; instead, it is to show the insufficiency of the former and the unacknowledged importance of the latter for the making of good architecture. While showing the links between desire, friendship, and responsibility in human affairs, he unveils the ways architecture builds culture by giving material and spatial definition to those relationships. His learning is deep, his writing is passionate, and his message is profoundly humane.”
— David Leatherbarrow, University of Pennsylvania
264 pp. $27.95

now in paperback

The Pan Am Building and the Shattering of the Modernist Dream
Meredith L. Clausen
“Clausen has rifled through the archives and peered behind the glass curtain of mid-century modernism to spin a gripping tale of financial and aesthetic hubris run amok.”
— Bookforum

<td>With Millennium Park, Timothy Gilfoyle offers a biography of the phenomenal undertaking that became Chicago's heralded new downtown park in 2004. Gilfoyle studied the history of downtown; spent years with the planners, artists, and public officials behind Millennium Park; documented it at every stage of its construction; and traced the skeins of financing through municipal government, global corporations, private foundations, and wealthy civic leaders. The result is a thoroughly readable and lavishly illustrated study of the globalization of art, the use of culture as an engine of economic expansion, and the nature of political and philanthropic power. THE DESTRUCTION OF MEMORY
Architecture at War
Robert Bevan
"Mr Bevan’s text is brimming with detail and informed insight regarding the conflicts he covers. . . . An excellent book."—Art Newspaper
"Compelling and convincing. . . . This important book reveals the extent of cultural warfare, exposes its nature and, by helping us to understand some of the most terrible tragedies of recent times, gives us the means and resolve to fight this evil. All who care must read this book and learn its lessons.”—Dan Cruickshank, The Independent

DESIGNING THE SEASIDE
Architecture, Society and Nature
Fred Gray
Fred Gray delves into the history of seaside architecture in Designing the Seaside, writing the rich, international story of the seaside resort’s diverse structures from the eighteenth century through today. Drawing on an array of historical material, including photographs, guidebooks, postcards, and posters, he offers a fascinating account of the cultural and social symbolism of the seaside resort and its role in the modern landscape.

FRANK LLOYD WRIGHT
Robert McCarter
While many books focus on Frank Lloyd Wright’s works, torrid personal life, or both, few solely consider his professional persona, as a man enmeshed in a web of prominent public figures and political ideas. In this new biography, Robert McCarter distills Wright’s life and work into a concise account that explores the beliefs and relationships so powerfully reflected in his architectural works.
