

ANN HALEY MACKENZIE,

CHILDREN'S BOOKS

Cells and Things Series. Balkwill. 1993. Carolrhod Inc. 32 pp. Paperback $8

This is one of an e series of juvenile books Balkwill, colorfully illust Mic Rolph. Each book on a particular aspect of biology. Both text and tions are light and liv often represent cells spe cartoon balloons in a style, sometimes using book format. Multi young people are show illustrations reacting to tings of the body, askir tions, and injecting some and fun. The text is fact concise, occasionally det is probably best suited to 5, 6, and 7, though exce enrichment of young learners and reinforcer review for older ones, school and at home.

Cell Wars. (ISBN 0-87614

ANN HALEY MACKENZIE, Book Editor, is an Associate Professor University, Oxford, OH, and teaches in Inquiry Life Science, and Science for Adolescent and Childhood Majors. She is also i developing a Science Teaching, I Society course and infuses film lar culture within all of her MacKenzie taught at the second for years and is a former Ohio the Year. She has also con National Geographic, BSCS, Physiological Society, PBS, Smithsonian Center for Astrop AAAS. Her predominant passi popular culture impacts the scie edge of children. As a result, she a web site linking science conce clips (www.flickclip.com). Her Teacher Education, Miami U 279 McGuffey Hall, Oxford, O e-mail: mackenhah@muohio.edu