

LETTERS

Feathers of "Spot On"

Dear Dr. M.

"Contrary to the biological theory, feathers must be made by students responsible for the future. I agree with the September issue of The American Biology Teacher so much so I respond.

I remember a discussion which evolved when I was a biology student asking a chaplain "question about a personal illness?" And then, "Can we be made less intelligent? The issues are important. I am making a decision in favor of the theory. It was hotly debated at an event, after the 20th century, the topic is the theory I have learned in biology class.

A decade in the 1950s, I taught biology in a classroom during those years. It was a controversy. It was ground breaking. Nevada and whether it was a good idea. (My class was studying about radioactivity and its effects. I was lively discussing the topic, related to the topic. I was early each day. I was invited to give a presentation (with enthusiasm, "Are you

Get Ex

Albu

NEW M

Albuquerque Center

October 1

For details,

visit www.albuquerquecenter.org