
Acknowledgments

First and foremost, we would like to thank our contributing authors, whose hard work and dedication made this book possible. The ideas in the book have been shaped by many stimulating discussions with our colleagues in the Fund, counterparts in member countries, and conference participants. While the list is too long to mention everyone by name, we owe them a great deal of gratitude. We are particularly grateful to our current and former colleagues from the Fiscal Affairs Department for making the department a stimulating environment for such an endeavor.

We are grateful to the IMF's External Relations Department and the MIT Press for their advice and efficient management of the production process. In particular, we would like to thank Sean Culhane and Patricia Loo at the IMF's External Relations Department, and Jane Macdonald and Dana Andrus at the MIT Press.

We are very grateful to Maria Tramuttola for outstanding editorial and logistical support.

The views expressed in the book are those of the authors and editors, and should not be attributed to the International Monetary Fund.

