

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This book owes a great deal to many people and institutions. A Roger Brown Residency, from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago, helped me to write a key piece of the book, and a Faculty Enrichment Grant from SAIC enabled me to secure essential images and reproduction permissions. For supporting my research on chapter 5, I would like to thank the Maine Women Writers Collection at the University of New England and the Stanley Museum, in Kingfield, Maine, especially Jennifer Tuttle, Cally Gurley, and Jim Merrick.

I am grateful for the opportunity to present work in progress at the following institutions and conferences: Department of English, University of Louisville; Critical Issues Speaker Series, University of Connecticut; Center for African American Studies, Princeton University; Humanities Research Center, Rice University; Cultural Studies Department, Columbia College, Chicago; Maine Historical Society; Department of Art History, University of Texas; Institute for Research on Women and Gender, Columbia University; Department of History, Northern Illinois University; Bavarian American Academy, Munich; Department of Literature, University of California, San Diego; Visual Culture Workshop, University of Michigan; Department of English, University of Kentucky; Photofolks Working Group, Toronto; University of Illinois, Chicago; Department of English, University of Missouri; American Studies Department, Rutgers University; College of Mass Communication and Media Arts, Southern Illinois University; Gender in the Archive Workshop, University of Michigan; Interdisciplinary Nineteenth Century Studies Association; Cultural Studies Association; Great Lakes American Studies Association; Visual Culture Center, University of Wisconsin; American Studies Department, Saint Louis University; Durham Centre for Advanced Photography Studies, Hatfield College, University of Durham, England; and Maine Women Writers Collection, University of New England. For these conversations I would especially like to thank Jeff Clymer, Elspeth Brown, Susan Griffin, Ellen Rosenman, Erika Doss, Jill Casid, Cherise Smith, Martha Cutter, Anne Cheng, Caroline Levander, Jaafar Aksikas, Curtis Marez, Saidiya Hartman, Heide Fehrenbach, Christof Decker, Volker Depkat, Michael Davidson, David Serlin, Sara Blair, Matthew Mancini, Susanne Wiedemann, Andrea Noble, Jonathan Long, Edward Welch, and Jennifer Tuttle.

Chapter 1 was originally published in Photography: Theoretical Snapshots, edited by Jonathan Long, Andrea Noble, and Edward Welch (London: Routledge, 2009), 98–111, and reprinted in Photography Degree Zero, edited by Geoffrey Batchen (Cambridge: MIT Press, 2009), 243–58. An earlier version of chapter 5 was first published in Legacy: A Journal of American Women Writers 26, no. 2 (2009): 346–69, and reprinted in an extended version in American Photography, edited by Bettina Gockel in collaboration with Patrizia Munforte (Berlin: Akademie Verlag, 2012). An earlier version of chapter 6 was published in Visual Cultures — Transatlantic Perspectives, edited by Volker Depkat (Heidelberg: Universitätsverlag Winter, 2012). Chapter 7 was originally published in Nka: Journal of Contemporary African Art 20 (2006): 72–85. I am grateful to all for permission to reprint these pieces here.

I am amazed by the rigor and brilliance of the women in my writing group, Jennifer Cole, Judy Farquhar, and Maud Ellman, and indebted to them for reading almost every piece of this book. Sharon Sliwinski helped me sort out the introduction and imagine the next project, and Patrick Rivers, Kai Mah, and Maud Lavin offered insightful comments on one of the chapters. I have had the pleasure of working with wonderful students at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago; their work and critical conversations are a constant source of inspiration. Several colleagues and friends close to home have helped make the whole thing worthwhile: Kym Pinder, Amy Mooney, Patrick Rivers, Kai Mah, Geof Bradfield, Mark Caughey, Kelly McKaig, Bruce Riley, Romi Crawford, Jim Elkins, Margaret MacNamidhe, Sara Levine, Chris Gaggero, and Terri Kapsalis — thank you. And one more round for Kym, Amy, and Romi and the writing group that wasn't.

It has been a pleasure and a thrill to work with Ken Wissoker. He helped frame the book in important ways, and I am grateful for his wisdom and guidance throughout the review process. I would also like to thank Jade Brooks for her patience in answering countless questions.

I am indebted to my family for their unwavering support and for pulling me away from time to time just for fun: thank you Sandy, Jay, and Shannon Smith, Derek Hutchinson, Haley, and Dylan. My deepest gratitude goes to Joe Masco, who cared for this project all along the way. He could see it even when I couldn't, and this book, like so many things, is for him.