

Preface

THE PAPERS included in this volume were presented at a conference entitled "The Atlantic Slave Trade: Who Gained and Who Lost?" held under the auspices of the Frederick Douglass Institute for African and African-American Studies of the University of Rochester in October 1988. The conference was held with the financial support of the Ford Foundation, through the Institute, and of the University of Rochester and its departments of economics and history. In addition to the presenters of the papers, some of whom also performed other roles, the attendees included: Stefano Fenoaltea; Philip D. Curtin, David Eltis, Stanley L. Engerman, and Henry A. Gemery (who served as discussants); and Tiffany R. Patterson and Robert L. Paquette (who chaired sessions). In preparing papers for publication in Social Science History as well as for this volume, we again benefited from the support of the Douglass Institute, particularly Charlette W. Henry, Anne S. Falvo, and Karen E. Fields, director, and of the department of economics. We also wish to thank Anne Keyl for her efforts in seeing the manuscript into book form.
