

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The making of an anthology, and particularly one that involves the collaborative authorship of an introduction, is a more labor-intensive and socially extended process than appearances might suggest. We have been fortunate to have superb assistance in this work. For their critical readings of early drafts of the introduction, we are grateful to Judith Butler, Gail Hershatter, David Kennedy, and Duncan Kennedy. We benefited from thoughtful engagement with the text at the Jurisdictions Conference at Ohio State University in May 2000 and at Cornell University Law School in March 2001. In addition, anonymous readers for the manuscript at Duke University Press offered valuable suggestions for improvement.

We are grateful for the research and technical assistance offered by Anne Marie Calareso, Robyn Marasco, and Deeni Stevens. Robyn Marasco also prepared the index. Financial support of the project was generously provided by the Dorothy Redwine Estate, Richard W. Weiland, the Robert E. Paradise Faculty Scholarship for Excellence in Research and Teaching (all of Stanford University), the Harvard Law School, and the Academic Senate Committee on Research of the University of California, Berkeley.

For their permission to reprint previously published material, we acknowledge the following.
