

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS

1. "Perforwhat Studies?", 2
2. Drawing by Alberto Beltrán, 16
3. Bernardino de Sahagún, Florentine Codex, 40
4. Miguel Sánchez, Virgin of Guadalupe, 47
5. Mena, Imagen de la Virgen de Guadalupe con las armas mexicanas y vista de la Plaza Mayor de México, 48
6. José de Ribera y Argomanis, Imagen de jura de la Virgen de Guadalupe, 1778, 49
7. Astrid Hadad as Coatlicue, in Heavy Nopal, 51
8. Theodoro de Bry, "Cólon cuando llegó a la India por primera vez . . . ," from Das Vierdte Buch Von Der Neuwen Welt, 1594, 56
9. Map of Tenochtitlán, a woodcut probably made for Cortés, 1524, 81
10. View from the ruins of the Templo Mayor, 83
11. Andrés de Islas, De Español, e India, nace mestizo, 1774, 87
12. Flora González as La Intermediaria in Yo también hablo de la rosa, directed by Diana Taylor, Teatro Cuatro, New York, 1983, 90
- 13, 14. Doña Marina negotiates between the indigenous groups and the Spaniards, from Bernardino de Sahagún, Florentine Codex, 92
15. Walter Mercado, 111

16. Poster of El Indio Amazónico in his consultorio in Queens, New York, 115
17. A poster in El Indio Amazónico's consultorio, 116
18. El Indio Amazónico's private office, 117
19. El Indio Amazónico's consultorio, 119
- 20, 21, 22. Diana, Selena, Elisa, murals by Chico, New York City, 136
23. "In Memory of Royalty and Holiness," mural by Chico, New York City, 138
- 24, 25, 26. Overkill, Diana, Tupac Shakur, murals by A. Charles, New York City, 139
27. Dr. Ara and Evita's corpse, from Página12, September 22, 1996, 144
28. "La Otra Eva," from Página12, Radar section, September 22, 1996, 145
29. Evita fades into Madonna on the cover of La Maga, January 31, 1996, 146
30. "No More Spectacles," graffiti-altered mural by A. Charles, New York City, 156
31. "No Saints, No Sinners," graffiti on the Diana mural by Chico, New York City, 156
32. "Die, Die, Die," graffiti on "In Memory of Royalty and Holiness," mural by Chico, New York City, 158
33. The facade that A. Charles painted on Houston Street undergoes gentrification, 158
34. "Overpopulation Is Killing Us," mural by Chico, 159
- 35, 36, 37. Escrache al Plan Condor, May 31, 2000, 162 and 163
- 38, 39. H.I.J.O.S. and Grupo Arte Callejero participate in an escrache, 166
40. Street signs with the photograph of the perpetrator, 167
41. "You are here": 500 meters from a concentration camp, 168
42. Protests by Abuelas and Madres de Plaza de Mayo denounce the government by using banners, 171
43. Madres de Plaza de Mayo continue their condemnation of their government's human rights abuses, 172
44. Otro gobierno, misma impunidad: "Different government, same impunity", 172
45. "Anatomy of Terrorism" shows the use of photography as evidence during the Trial of the Generals in 1985, 175
- 46, 47. The placement of mirrors next to images of the disappeared in

- Memoria gráfica de Abuelas de Plaza de Mayo* at the Centro Cultural Recoleta in Buenos Aires, 179
48. At protests, H.I.J.O.S. use the long horizontal banner with their name on it, 181
49. The large placard photographs of the disappeared haunt the protest practice, 181
- 50, 51, 52. These children of the disappeared knew their parents only from photographs, 184 and 185
53. H.I.J.O.S. use the blown-up photo IDs of the disappeared in their rallies, 186
54. “Usted Esta Aquí, You Are Here”, 188
55. Teresa Ralli in Contraelviento, 191
56. Patio, Casa Yuyachkani: Edmundo Torres dances the role of the China diabla, July 1996, 197
57. Ana Correa, in her costume from Los músicos ambulantes, participating in a public protest, 1996, 202
58. Teresa Ralli, in her costume from Los músicos ambulantes, performs in an orphanage, 203
59. Scene from Adios Ayacucho, 1990, 205
- 60, 61. Teresa Ralli in Antígona, 2000, 207
62. Denise Stoklos walks onstage in Civil Disobedience, 1999, 213
- 63, 64. Thoreau’s/Stoklos’s woods—a forest of ropes—is transformed into a jail cell in Civil Disobedience, 215
65. Eight TV sets count down to the millennium as Denise Stoklos hurries to get her message out in Civil Disobedience, 216
66. Denise Stoklos turns herself inside out in Civil Disobedience, 216
- 67, 68, 69. Denise Stoklos transforms her face into a series of masks, 218 and 219
- 70, 71. Denise Stoklos struggles to achieve communication, 220
72. Jesusa Rodríguez’s version of Coatlicue, the Aztec “mother” of all Mexicans, 222
73. Astrid Hadad, in Heavy Nopal, 1998, 222
74. Denise Stoklos explores Brazilian militarism and postmodern alienation in Casa, 1990, 224
75. Denise Stoklos responds to the ongoing effects of colonialism in 500 Years—A Fax from Denise Stoklos to Christopher Columbus, 1992, 224

76. Denise Stoklos in Mary Stuart, 1987, 225
77. Des-Medéia, Stoklos's 1995 performance in which Medea chooses not to kill her children, 225
78. Denise Stoklos's work featured in a Brazilian theatre festival, 1999, 226
- 79, 80. World Trade Center Towers 1 and 2 on fire after attack on September 11, 2001, 238
81. The streets emptied out after the attacks on September 11, 240
- 82, 83. One tower folded, then two. . . , 242
- 84, 85. The first Mets game after September 11, 246
86. Drawing of Towers where they once stood, Brooklyn, September 2001, 247
- 87, 88. People in the fliers seemed to come from every imaginable background and part of the world, 248
89. Bellevue Hospital's Wall of Prayers, 250
90. New York City suddenly became part of "America", 251
91. Plastic shrouds for the victims' photographs, 251
- 92, 93. Memorial shrines and portals for the dead, 253
94. Photograph published in the New York Times the day after the attack, 254
95. New Yorkers started interacting with the city in a different way, as active participants in a crisis, 254
96. A man reading the inscription on a mural by Chico, New York City, 254
97. Drawing by Marina Manheimer-Taylor, 256
98. Local mural artists, like Chico from the Lower East Side, offered their homage, 256
- 99, 100, 101. "Live" performances, installations, and protests showed a far greater range of opinion than the TV coverage, 257
- 102, 103. Towers for peace, towers for war . . . , 258
- 104, 105. Signs went up prohibiting photography near ground zero, 259
106. People on the World Trade Center viewing platform, 261
107. Debris from the World Trade Center, on display on the viewing platform, 265
108. Ground zero. There was nothing to see, 265
109. Diana Taylor filming police in Central Park, New York City, 1998, 268