

List of Illustrations

1. Sign for a video store that rents VCRs xiv
2. Print advertisement for the Sony Betamax 9
- 3a–c. Video degeneration 14
 4. VHS tapes of Korean TV serials 28
 5. Hidden shelves of Korean VHS tapes 29
 6. VHS Japanese TV bootlegs on clearance 31
- 7a–b. Newsweek and Time proclaim a “video revolution” on their covers in 1984 45
 8. The earliest Sony Betamax 47
 9. An electronics store, circa 1984 56
10. Jane Fonda’s Workout 60
11. The second Rob Lowe sex tape 69
- 12a–b. The Tommy Lee and Pamela Anderson sex tape 70
 13. VHS bootlegs on closeout at a fan convention 74
 14. Print advertisement for a Toshiba Betamax 92
 15. Time magazine’s coverage of the Supreme Court decision in Sony v. Universal 100
16. Paul Simpson, founder of Vanderbilt Television News Archive 120
17. James Pilkington, VTNA administrator 125
- 18a–b. Video recording and study stations at the VTNA in the early days 127
- 19a–d. NBC news coverage of the protests and violence during the 1968 Democratic National Convention 130–131
 20. Fuzzy footage of President Nixon on the VTNA’s promo reel 134
 21. VTNA footage from the local CBS news report the day the network filed suit against the archive 146

22. Karen in the recording studio in Superstar: The Karen Carpenter Story 162
23. Karen performs live in Superstar 166
24. A human hand ruptures the plastic world of Superstar 167
25. Anorexia as represented in Superstar 168
26. The media influences Karen's mental state in Superstar 179
27. A dissolve suggests psychic distress in Superstar 180
28. Media appropriation from The Partridge Family in Superstar 182
29. Bootleg distortion of Superstar 184
30. Pipilotti Rist's I'm Not the Girl Who Misses Much 193
- 31a–b. The First Day of the Beginning of the End of the World 196
 32. Stories from the Black Asian Planet 208
- 33a–c. A Wild Horse Rider 212
 34. Long after the Thrill 214
- 35a–c. Long after the Thrill 216
 36. All I Can Be 220
 37. The YouTube interface 228
- 38a–d. Viral videos on YouTube 236–37