Acknowledgments

It has been my great privilege and distinct pleasure to have studied with the most gifted group of teachers and scholars ever assembled at one university: Richard Baxter, Harold Berman, Abram Chayes, C. Clyde Ferguson, Jr., Roger Fisher, Paul Freund, Lon Fuller, Stanley Hoffmann, Robert Jervis, Edward L. Keenan, Jr., John D. Montgomery, Richard Pipes, Judith Shklar, Louis Sohn, Henry Steiner, Adam Ulam, Roberto Unger, Detlev Vagts, and Michael Walzer. I would also like to express my gratitude to Anthony D'Amato, Richard Falk, Leo Gross, Richard Lewontin, Alfred Rubin, and Burns Weston. For all the knowledge they and many others have imparted to me over the years, I am truly grateful. For all this essay lacks, I alone am responsible.

This book is dedicated to the memory of my international relations teacher, Hans Morgenthau. In a day when young men and women were seeking to comprehend the meaning of that great tragedy which befell our generation, he enlightened us with the fire of his own spirit. May his fire burn within our hearts forever.
