

Acknowledgments

Although this book was conceived, written, and produced during a five-year time span concentrated within the academic world, it has been shaped by a longer and wider scope of learning and engagement. Most of all, I want to thank the artists, organizers, and scholars whose work I have only been able to highlight in the book and whose imaginations and labor have enabled me to create and build points of description, connection, and context. The many people and groups whose work I was not able to discuss in this limited collection of writings, although they have contributed to my thinking and growth in relationship to trans, queer, feminist, disability, and racial justice movement building and cultures, include, among others, Christopher Lee, Tamara Ching, Bamby Salcedo, Chandi Moore, Emi Koyama, Ignacio Rivera, Ryka Aoki, Lexi Nepantla Adsit, Pauline Park, Kortney Ryan Ziegler, Amita Swadin, Andy Marra, Ola Osaze, Cecilia Gentilli, Ashlee Marie Preston, Kay Ulanday Barrett, Trish Salah, D'Lo, Kai M. Green, Leeroy Kun Young Kang, Imani Henry, Leah Lakshmi Piepzna-Samarasinha, Pablo Espinoza, Willy Wilkinson, Kit Yan, Kris Hayashi, Alex Lee, Chino Scott-Chung, Ryan Li Dahlstrom, Elliott Fukui, Aren Aizura, Janani Balasubramanian, Alok Vaid-Menon, Mashuq Mushtaq Deen, Ren-yo Hwang, the Trans Women of Color Collective, the Audre Lorde Project, Sylvia Rivera Project, Translatina Network, Peacock Rebellion, Queer Rebels, Fresh Meat Productions, the Transgender Law Center, and El/La Para TransLatinas.

I am deeply grateful to Duke University Press series editors Jasbir Puar and Mel Y. Chen and executive editor Courtney Berger for trusting, supporting, and guiding my unfolding work from inception to completion. I thank editorial associate Sandra Korn, project editor Susan Albury, designer Courtney Baker, and copywriter Chris Robinson for their artistry, work, and patience in materializing this book.

At the Ohio State University (OSU), Joe Ponce has been an unwavering mentor, friend, and co-conspirator. Debra Moddelmog, Judy Wu, Lynn Itagaki, Robyn Warhol, and Shannon Winnbust have created spaces of vitality and support for my research, teaching, and cultural organizing. I am grateful to have the opportunity to work with brilliant, devoted colleagues Pranav Jani, Jill Galvin, Valerie Lee, Jim Phelan, Christopher Jones, Andrea Williams, Wendy Hesford, Koritha Mitchell, Sean O'Sullivan, Nancy Yan, Thomas Davis, Beverly Moss, Frederick Luis Aldama, Adélékè Adéèkó, Tracee Mohler, Wayne Lovely, Merrill Kaplan, Deb Lowry, Pablo Tanguay, David Adams, Michelle Ann Abate, Brian McHale, Nan Johnson, Sandra Macpherson, Ethan Knapp, Roxann Wheeler, Amanpal Garcha, Molly Farrell, Jared Gardner, Elizabeth Hewitt, David Brewer, Mike Bierschenk, Cynthia Selfe, Ryan Friedman, Kathleen Griffin, Lauren Squires, Breanne LeJeune, MaryKatherine Ramsey, Ruth Friedman, Jesse Schotter, Sarah Neville, Jacob Risinger, Nicole Cochran, Tiffany Quattlebaum, Christa Teston, Zoe Brigley Thompson, and Mira Kafantaris in the Department of English. I have appreciated intellectual and programmatic collaboration with Amy Shuman, Margaret Price, Namiko Kunimoto, Theresa Delgadillo, Daniel Rivers, Nick Spitulski, Toni Calbert, Jonathan Branfman, and other participants of the Diversity and Identity Studies Collective (DISCO) that brings together American Indian, Asian American, Latina/o, Disability, and Sexuality Studies programs. Special thanks to Tayo Clyburn and the Office of Diversity and Inclusion for bringing Janet Mock, in conversation with bell hooks, to OSU in 2013 and for bringing such impactful LGBT programming to OSU. Special thanks also to Maurice Stevens for guiding the early stages of my book-writing process. I have appreciated the collegial presence and support of Jill Bystydzienski, Jennifer Suchland, Vera Brunner-Sung, Amna Akbar, Sa'dia Rehman, Tanya Saunders, Binaya Subedi, Marc Johnston, Annabelle Estera, Mollie Blackburn, Treva Lindsey, Juno Salazar Parreñas, Noah Tamarkin, Guisela Latorre, Mary Thomas, Julia Watson, and Leslie Alexander. My work has been especially energized by conversations with present and previous graduate students Mercedes Chavez, Ariana Steele, James Harris, Zachary Harvat, Indya Jackson, Krista Benson, Joy Ellison, Nicholas "Nic" Flores, Debanuj DasGupta, Adrienne Winans, Juwon Lee, Leila Ben-Nasr, Pritha Prasad, Ryan Schey, Meredith Lee, Natalia Colón Alvarez, Alison Cummins, Jonathan Gillett, Kaiya Gordon, Misha Grifka, Arielle Irizarry, Xiyue Zhang, Deja Beamon, Allison Hargett, Elizabeth Blackford, Bonnie Opliger, Victor

Smith, Swati Vijaya, Nicole Pizarro, Nathan Richards, Erik Scaltriti, Chen Wang, Babette Cieskowski, Lindsay Hodgens, Danielle Orozco, Josh Ziri, Ali Alhaji, Joshua Anderson, Sidney Jones, Marie Franco, Molly Olguin, Luke Bauer, Sara Cieto, Brooke Felts, Michael Harwick, Joey Kim, Sharon Stein, Rebecca Sullivan, Maria Celleri, Han Chen, Melissa Stidams, Divya Sundar, and Drew Young. Lastly, I thank David Filipi, Chris Stults, and Jennifer Lange at the Wexner Center for the Arts for hosting film screenings with Tanwarin Sukkhapsit and Wu Tsang.

Much appreciation to Wendy Hui Kyong Chun for engaging critically and generously with an early version of my manuscript through a workshop organized by OSU Asian American Studies in 2014. Heartfelt thanks to Jack Tchen, Laura Chen-Shultz, Alexandra Chang, Amita Manghnani, Ruby Gómez, and the Asian/Pacific/American (A/P/A) Institute at New York University (NYU) for hosting me as a visiting scholar in 2012. Yozmit, Tanwarin Sukkhapsit, Elle Mehrmand, Felix Endara, and Jasbir Puar's exciting participation in the "Transmitting Trans-Asian" exhibition and conversation at the A/P/A Institute provided the original impetus for this book. I also thank Susan Stryker, Paisley Currah, Aren Aizura, Yolanda Martínez-San Miguel, Sarah Tobias, Celine Parreñas Shimizu, Kara Keeling, Heather Love, Anita Mannur, Lisa Nakamura, and Kale Fajardo for opportunities, critical feedback, and conversations that have strengthened my book and work.

At NYU, I am indebted to E. Frances White for creating the university-wide Academic Diversity Postdoctoral Fellowship program and for her mentorship through the fellowship program and at the Gallatin School of Individualized Study. I thank Susanne Wofford, Ritty Lukose, Valerie Forman, Vasuki Nesiiah, Millery Polyné, Myisha Priest, Alejandro Velasco, Hannah Gurman, A. B. Huber, Stacy Pies, Hallie Franks, Michael Dinwiddie, Nina Cornyetz, Sinan Antoon, Rachel Plutzer, Patrick McCreery, and Jessica Lee at Gallatin for supporting my work. In particular, the encouragement and contributions of Lisa Duggan, Karen Shimakawa, Ann Pellegrini, Jung-Bong Choi, Radha Hegde, Ella Shohat, Mara Mills, Yukiko Hanawa, José Esteban Muñoz, Gayatri Gopinath, Tavia Nyong'o, Wendy Cheng, Lissette-Tatiana Olivares, Imani Kai Johnson, Marie Cruz Soto, Jennifer Williams, Lisette Garcia, Alexander Galloway, Zhen Zhang, Crystal Parikh, and Marcial Godoy-Anativia have enlivened my relationship to academic scholarship and community. I enjoyed and learned from my conversations and work with previous graduate and undergraduate students Aaron Evans, Wesley Wollet, Thomas Casteneda,

Elizabeth Perry, Melissa Salm, Anna Mullen, Dana Droppo, Olivia Kendall, Ashley Oh, Janet Lee, Paolo Lopez, and Dorianne Loshitzer.

At the University of California, Irvine (UCI), I am grateful to Laura Hyun Yi Kang, Rei Terada, Jennifer Terry, and Ackbar Abbas for their guidance and support on my PhD dissertation and for laying the foundations for my academic work. Lindon Barrett, Akira Lippit, Glen Mimura, Inderpal Grewal, Eyal Amiran, Linda Trinh Vo, R. Radhakrishnan, Bliss Cua Lim, Mark Poster, Annette Schlichter, Gabriele Schwab, Ngugi wa Thiong'o, Jane Newman, Dina Al-Kassim, Étienne Balibar, Jonathan Hall, J. Hillis Miller, Fred Moten, Arielle Read, and June Kurata each contributed to my academic growth. Special thanks to Gayatri Chakravorty Spivak, Judith Butler, Mel Y. Chen, Glen Mimura, and Deborah Vargas for their generous participation in the "Global States" conference, hosted by Comparative Literature graduate students, and to David Theo Goldberg, Kim Benita Furumoto, and the UC Humanities Research Institute for the opportunity to join the "Present Tense Empires, Race, and Bio-Politics" Seminar in Experimental Critical Theory. I appreciated the academic companionship of previous graduate students Cindy Cheng, Shalini Fernandez, Donna Tong, Priya Shah, Neha Vora, Linh Hua, Natalie Newton, Jane Hseu, Michelle Cho, Wendy Piquemal, Erin Trapp, Tim Wong, Anna Cavness, Rosemary Kwa, Rose Jones, Janet Neary, Lindsay Puente, Lan Duong, Mariam Lam, Anna Kornbluh, Travis Tanner, Randy Ontiveros, I-Lien Tsay, Stewart Chang, Jane Griffin, Katherine Mack, Juan Buriel, Margaux Cowden, and Emma Heaney.

I could not have navigated the challenges of the academic industry and culture and life's many transitions without the care and inspiration of friends and comrades including Maritza Penagos, Stacy Kono, Gabriel Martinez, Nancy Cato, Dolores Garay, Laura B. Johnson, Noel Yin, Michelle Rivera Gravage, Jason Luz, Rima Añosa, Jason Alley, Maya and Chino Scott-Chung, Lisa Fujie Parks, Oscar Trujillo, Leeroy Kun Young Kang, Dani Heffernan, Lissette-Tatiana Olivares, Cheto Castellano, Un Jung Lim, Imani Henry, Felix Endara, Kadji Amin, Grace Nam, Milyoung Cho, Jennifer DeClue, Cecilia Gentilli, Pauline Park, Laimah Osman, Ninotchka Rosca, Sockie Laya Smith, Carrie Hawks, Wendy Cheng, Imani Kai Johnson, Yvette Choy, Ola Osaze, Kit Yan, Sel Hwang, Julian Liu, Tara Hart, Jeannine Tang, Vanessa Huang, Erica Cho, Sheena Malhotra, Gina Masequesmay, Gil Mangaoang, Maylei Blackwell, Karen Tongson, Richard Haberstroh, Tan Nguyen, Elizabeth Lee, Suparna Bhaskaran, Kris Long, Nancy Yan, Pejmaan Fallah, Wendy Ake, Sandhya Kochar, Noah Demland, Alcira Dueñas, Vera Brunner-Sung, Sam

Meister, Tayo Clyburn, Tara Polansky, Rashida Davison, Timothy Singharajah, Danielle Marilyn West, Dkéama Alexis, and Wriply Bennet. I give my deepest thanks to healers Trinity Ordoná, Kit Yoon, and Donna Sigl-Davies and to dear friends and mentors E. Frances White, Ellen Eisenman, and Mel Y. Chen. My chosen siblings, Jabu Pereira, Iyatunde Folayan, Prajna Paramita Choudury, and Joyti Chand; my birth parents, Frances and Yuan Chen; and my birth sibling, Billy Chen, have journeyed every step with me.