

acknowledgments

Love is why. (The rule is love.) I acknowledge all my relations. I acknowledge all. My relations. Thank the air and the earth and the heat and the water for converging in me. Thank all the directions for meeting me everywhere. Thank my grandfather Jeremiah Gumbs for remembering poems. Thank my grandmother Lydia Gumbs for practicing community as design and listening to dolphins. Thank my great-grandmother Augusta Carty for living a black and blackening love. Thank my great-grandfather Paul McKenzie for growing oranges. Thank my great-grandmother Sarah McKenzie for growing community and family. Thank my grandmother Joyce McKenzie for nurturing love. Thank my great-great-great-grandmother Georgianna for offering embrace. Thank my great-great-grandmother Rebecca for protecting women and girls from sexual violence. Thank my great-grandmother Eugenia for going where she needed to go. Thank my great-grandfather Aubrey Jones for recognition. Thank my grandfather Joseph McKenzie for his proverbs.

Thank my cousin Hutson for writing down the history. Thank my Aunt Una Gumbs for remembering the lineage. Thank my Uncle Alan Gumbs and Aunt Lisa Gumbs for holding space for memory and miracles. Thank my Uncle Duane and Aunt Carol for feeding and caring for generations. Thank my Uncle Keith for loving the people. Thank my Aunt Isabel for her faith. Thank my cousin Kyle McKenzie for insisting on experience. Thank my cousin Sean McKenzie for telling the truth even if it's a whisper. Thank my Uncle Fred for mystery and a chemistry set. Thank my mother in love Anne Wallace for revolutionary mothering and grandmothering. Thank my father in love Waylon Wallace for genealogy and genius. Thank my sister in love Erica Wallace for remembering healing power. Thank my sister in love Laura Wallace for continuing to write. Thank my nephew Elijah Michael for an open heart. Thank my niece Taylor Michael for good questions. Thank my nephew Lazarus Michael for vulnerability and freedom. Thank my nephew Jayden Wallace for attentive love. Thank my nephew Jordan Wallace for honest storytelling. Thank my nephew Jaleel Wallace for old soul reminders. Thank my sister Kyla Day-Fletcher for the shared journey. Thank my brother in love Nic Fletcher for sharing generations. Thank my nephew Logan Day-Fletcher for being best friends with everyone at once. Thank my nephew Lucas Day-Fletcher for just being here. Thank my cousin Justin Gumbs for helping me learn compassion. Thank little Jeremiah for rebirth. Thank my cousin Victoria Ruan for keeping a song alive inside. Thank my cousin in love Davan Ruan for retaining and sharing the superpowers. Thank my baby cousin Dorian for showing up just in time. Thank my cousin Branden Gumbs for being an artist. Thank my brother Jared Gumbs for reflection. Thank my brother Seneca Morin for my dreams. Thank my sister Ariana Good for the next generation. Thank my brother in love Andrew Good for loving whales. Thank my niece McKenzie Marie Good for re-introducing me to my inner child. Thank my niece Penelope McClive Good for teaching me a new language.

Thank my father, Clyde Gumbs, for my belief that everything can change. Thank my mother, Pauline McKenzie, for my loved and loving life.

Thank my ancestors named. Thank my ancestors unnamable.

Thank my mentormother Cheryl Greene for the eyes of an editor and the soul of a sister. Thank my mentorauntie Cynthia Brown for never leaving anyone behind. Thank my namesake Alexis De Veaux for making the name a prayer and a practice. Thank my cherished Sokari Ekine for making breathing and spirit portable. Thank you queen fairy emeritus Courtney Reid-Eaton for modeling magic. Thank you Omi Osun for the power of the present moment. Thank you Sharon Bridgforth for doing your love work and for every invitation. Thank you M. Jacqui Alexander for infinite modalities of listening. Thank you Soul Brother Eric Pritchard for love without limit.

Thank you sister-comrade Aishah Simmons for breaking silences. Thank you M. NourbeSe Philip for transforming the way I look and live through language. Thank you exemplary “somebody” Jeannette Bronson for your devotion. Thank you sister Ebony Noelle Golden for early advice on this series and for its future as durational performances. Thank you sister Yashna Maya Padamsee for teaching me to breathe. Thank you sister Leah Lakshmi Piepzna-Samarsinha for keeping me honest. Thank you sister Adrienne Maree Brown for living your truth and bringing me with you. Thank you sister Walidah Imarisha for being the baddest good sista a sista can have. Thank you sister Kara Urqhart Green for love and laughter. Thank you sister Janelle Edwards Steward for love and faith. Thank you sister Savannah Shange for the all ages of revolution. Thank you beacon Toshi Reagon for sower and harvest. Thank you brotherunclereverend Marvin K. White for your love and the sacred word. Thank you Baba Chuck Davis for making Durham a portal for dance that could heal me. Thank you Mama Nayo Watkins for building a community that could perform memory and possibility at the same time.

Thank you to Shinnecock elders Quita Sullivan, Lance Gumbs, and Denise Silva Dennis for helping me listen.

Gratitude to my intellectual family of origin and growth for nurturing my interest and my excess and my soul. There are too many people to name, but thank you especially to my high school teachers Donna Ellwood and Catherine Tipton and everyone at Paideia. Thank you to Monica Miller, Farah Jasmine Griffin, Mignon Moore, Sharon Harris, Vivian Taylor, Rosalind Rosenberg, Thaddeaus Russell, and Jennie Kassanoff at Barnard College and Columbia University. Thank you Marcellous Blount. You live forever. Thank you Maurice Wallace, Wahneema Lubiano, Karla Holloway, Fred Moten, Michelene Crichlow, Mark Anthony Neal, Ian Baucom, Tina Campt, Sharon Holland, Deborah Thomas, John Thomas, and Priscilla Wald for your time at Duke University and for deciding to support my strangest propositions. Thank you for creating precedents and not precincts.

I am grateful for the scholars and activists who supported me beyond institutional affiliation. Thank you for your generosity, Hortense Spillers, Ruth Nicole Brown, Saidiya Hartman, Tavia Nyong’o, Michelle Wright, Layli Phillips Marpayan, Beverly Guy-Sheftall, Akasha Hull, Barbara Smith, Demita Frazier, Margo Okazawa-Rey, Barbara Ransby, Ruthie Gilmore, and Mendi + Keith Obadike.

I acknowledge with gratitude and love the community of scholars who made my immersion in the work of Sylvia Wynter and Caribbean studies possible. Thank you first of all to Brent Edwards for telling me about Sylvia Wynter and then mailing the essay “Ethno or Socio Poetics” to my house. Thank you Katherine McKittrick for Demonic Grounds which I bought in the Toronto Women’s Bookstore and which provided me with my first comprehensive bibliography of Wynter, and for your loving and tireless dedication and loyalty to Wynter’s work. Thank you Deb Thomas, Tina Camp, and the committee of those multiple Diasporic Hegemonies conferences for introducing me to M. Jacqui Alexander, Alyssa Trotz, Reinaldo Walcott, and Andrea Smith without whom this work would be unimaginable. Thank you Anthony Bogues for organizing a symposium and celebration of Wynter at the University of the West Indies at Mona. Thank you Carole Boyce Davies and everyone on the committee of the Association of Caribbean Writers and Scholars for featuring Sylvia Wynter as a major speaker at the conference in Miami. Thank you Nick Mitchell for sharing everything you have shared and for supporting Wynter’s continued work. Thank you David Stein for offering to bring me to meet Wynter in California even though I couldn’t do it. Thank you Hyacinth Simpson, Ivy Wilson, Donette Francis, and Christian Campbell for encouraging my earliest writing about the Caribbean/as a Caribbean scholar. Thank you Annie Paul for generously guiding my first scholarly visit to Jamaica. Thank you Ronald Cummings for telling me who Dionne Brand is and for being a brother in this work forever. Thank you Omise’eke Tinsley for bringing the sweetness, fierceness, and clarity of water to us all. Thank you cousin Matt Richardson for teaching me that we can transform our Lesser Antilles narratives and family lines. Thank you Angeliq Nixon for your dedication to our queer Caribbean contribution and the legacy of the Lorde. Thank you Rosamond King for exemplifying intergenerational accountability and brave critical poetics. Thank you Erna Brodber for welcoming me immediately. Thank you Merle Hodge for remembering me unapologetically. Thank you Velma Pollard for ferocious reclamation. Thank you Dionne Brand for making it impossible for me to not write about the Caribbean and diaspora. Thank you Audre Lorde for making it possible for me to write about anything. Thank you Gloria Joseph for helping to bring me home to Audre and myself. Thank each of you for helping me find my way back.

I am grateful for my first feminist literary community, Charis Books/Charis Circle, in Atlanta, Georgia. Thank you for creating a space of attention and love for us, Linda Bryant. Thank you Errol Raymond Anderson and Beatrice Sullivan for traveling with me forever in the light of what our words make possible.

I am grateful for my spiritual teachers and spiritual community who have deepened my ancestral listening and activated my oracle consciousness. Thank you Ifalade Tashia Asanti, Ifasade Oyade (Queen Hollins), Osunnike Ankh, Koleoso Karade, and all the beloved practitioners in Ile Ori Ogbe Egun and the Institute of Whole Life Healing (Many Paths One Truth).

I am grateful to my Brilliance Remastered family who support my life as an independent scholar and make it possible. Thank you for thinking with me the whole time I was writing and editing this. Special love to those who co-created ceremony with me during this period's Brilliance Remastered Intensives. Our ancestors are gathered. Our spirits are kindred. Love to Mel Monoceros, Jessica Marie Johnson, Tina Zafreen, Natalie Clark, Laura Sullivan, Bianca Laureano, Iyatunde Folayan, Rockie Gilford Stepter, Nicole Wilson, Nzingha Tyehemba, Mankwe Ndotsi, Tamiko Beyer, Daphne Jayapal, Patricia Torres, Lydia Kelow-Bennett, Matice Moore, Naima Lowe, Auset O'Neal, Stephanie Latty, Lorraine Warren, Marie Varghese, D Smith, Jamilah Bradshaw, Agatha Roa, Grace Nichols, Alexis Flanagan, Ayana Omilade Flewellen, and Tala Khanmalek. You are answered prayers.

I am grateful for my community of Women of Color Media Makers who taught me how to be a community-accountable scholar in a digital world. Thank you for bringing us together, Nadia Abou-Karr. Thank you for loving me, Sydette Harry, Susana Adame, Meagan "La Mala" Ortiz, Lisa Factora-Borchers, Stacey Milbern, Adela Nieves, Noemi Martinez, Fabiola Sandoval, Elena Rose, and Rosa Cabrera. May we continue to seize the world around us with our freedom.

I am grateful to my Durham community for supporting me while I was writing this: Aleese Moore-Obih, Faith Holseart, Beth Bruch, Maya Freelon, Zaina Alsous, Destiny Hemphill, Michelle Lanier, Eden Segbefia, Lana Garland, Manju Rajendran Mariel Eaves, Tema Okun, and Lynne Walters. I am grateful to our Earthseed Family, Cristina River Chapman, Zulayka Santiago, Kifu Faruq, Courtney Woods, Santos Flores, Tahz Rufus Walker, Justin Robinson, Corre Robinson, and the babies! I am grateful to SpiritHouse and Warrior Healer Fam, especially Ade Toyesi Nia Wilson, Solanke Omimuyegun Racheal Derello, Afiya Carter, Osunfunke Omisade Burney-Scott, Kriti Sharma, Mya Hunter, Tia Hall, Matthias Pressley, Michelle Gonzales-Green, Hadassah Jones, Naeemah Kelly, Asata Goff, Sekou Goff, Heather Lee, Paul (Yusef) Newman, Adele Rose Luebke, Taj Scott, and everyone in the SpiritHouse and Warrior Healer families. Eternal love to our young brilliant ancestors Umar Muhammed and Brian Wiley and their families.

I am grateful to my Carriacou Sisters who attended and organized the Spiral Lab “Take My Jewel for Light Retreat.” Thank you Karma Mayet Johnson and Shelley Nicole for listening to spirit and creating the space. Thank you Donna Hope, Katherine Johnson, Cousin Cindy McKenzie, Jani White, Denise Mervis, Tammy Brown, and Paulette Jones.

I am grateful to my Twin Cities community for supporting me while I finalized this manuscript. Thank you especially to Zenzele Isoke for inviting me to hold the visiting 2017–19 Winton Chair at University of Minnesota and for offering sistering and literal warmth. Thank you to Naimah Petigny for priceless research assistance and grounded sistering during this time. Much love to Mankwe Ndosì, Erin Sharkey, Signe Harriday, Junauda Petrus, Zoe Hollomon, ShaVunda Brown, Ego Ahaiwe, Ngowo Nasah, Frida Martin, Ananya Chatterjea, Alessandra Williams, Katie Robinson, Adrienne Doyle, Sally Nixon, Dana Suttles, Shannon Gibney, Danielle Mkali, Beverly Cottman, Cherisse Turner, Paige Reynolds, Kiara Jackson, Shannon Miller, Nasreen Mohamed, and Joi D. Lewis. Thank you to the cast of Sharon Bridgforth’s Dat Black Mermaid Man Lady, Paville French, Florinda Bryant, Aimee Bryant, and Kenyai O’Neal for teaching me to read a different way. Thank you to Marcus Young, Mire Regulus, and the Don’t You Feel It Too Cohort!

Thank you to the team at Duke University Press, especially Ken Wissoker for your supportive listening and for believing in me beyond the work. Thank you everyone who has helped midwife this triptych, especially Olivia Polk, Nicole Campbell, Jade Brooks, Jessica Ryan, Heather Hensley, Chad Royal, Laura Sell, Michael McCullough, and Liz Smith. Thank you cousin Stephanie Gomez for your smile and for slanging the books! Thank you Nina Oteria Foster for your insightful questions about this manuscript. Thank you to the anonymous reviewers for advocating for me with love and specificity.

Parts of this work were published under different names with slight differences in Ecotone, Indiana Review, Scalawag, Meridians, and Feminist Formations. Gratitude to the editors at each of those journals.

I shared parts of this work at Stellar Masses, a project of Philadelphia Contemporary. Thank you dear sister Yolanda Wisher for creating a sacred space and for your curation as divination.

I shared parts of this work at Evergreen College as the 2017 Evans Chair. Thank you Naima Lowe for inviting me into your community and for your brave and loving stand for your students.

I am grateful to the divine Cauleen Smith for allowing her art to grace the cover of this book. I am grateful to my sister dreamer artist Soraya Jean-Louis McElroy for creating the portal cover of M Archive. I am grateful to the brilliant Kenyatta A. C. Hinkle for creating the haunting cover of Spill. I am grateful to my love Sangodare for periodic-table illustrations in M Archive that allowed people to become scientists in time to read this book and for your oceanic illustrations in this text.

To Sylvia Wynter—thank you for your bravery. Thank you for the size and sincerity of your vision. Thank you for every word.

And most of all (again) to my first and last reader, thank you Sangodare (aka JDub) for the unconditional love that makes me brave enough to write every day whether or not it will make sense to anyone ever.