

Announcement of Editorial Transition

Professor James A. Largay III, Lehigh University, will be the new Managing Editor and Editor of Accounting Horizons effective with the March 2001 issue. Because of the length of time necessary to process manuscripts through the review process, the transition of the Accounting Horizons editorial review process will take place on April 30, 2000. All new submissions to Accounting Horizons after April 30, 2000 should be sent directly to Professor Largay (see address below).

All papers that are still in their first round of review as of April 30, 2000 will also be forwarded to Professor Largay for editorial decisions once the reviewers return them. I will continue to be the editor for all manuscripts that have completed one or more rounds of reviews as of April 30, 2000, even if this means that papers are not accepted for publication in time for the December 2000 issue. By agreement, in-process papers that are accepted by my associate editors or me after the December 2000 issue will be published in Accounting Horizons once they are accepted.

If you have any questions or concerns regarding this transition policy, please do not hesitate to contact my editorial assistant, Sherry Folsom, or me (see the inside cover for contact information). Your understanding and support of this transition will be greatly appreciated by both the incoming and outgoing editors.

Thanks,

Eugene A. Imhoff, Jr., Editor
Accounting Horizons
