The object of Behavioral Research In Accounting (BRIA) is to promote the wide dissemination of the results of systematic scholarly inquiries into the broad field of accounting.

Permission is hereby granted to reproduce any of the contents of BRIA for use in courses of instruction, as long as the source and American Accounting Association copyright are indicated in any such reproductions.

Written application must be made to the Editor for permission to reproduce any of the contents of BRIA for use in other than courses of instruction—e.g., inclusion in books of readings or in other publications intended for general distribution. In consideration for the grant of permission by BRIA in such instances, the applicant must notify the author(s) in writing of the intended use to be made of each reproduction. Normally, BRIA will not assess a charge for the waiver of copyright.

Except where otherwise noted in articles, the copyright interest has been transferred to the American Accounting Association. Where the author(s) has (have) not transferred the copyright to the Association, applicants must seek permission to reproduce (for all purposes) directly from the author(s).

Members of the Accounting, Behavior and Organizations Section of the American Accounting Association receive online journal access to BRIA as part of their annual fee. The subscription fee for individuals and organizations who are not members of the Section is $30.00 per year. Mail your subscription request (with remittance) to: American Accounting Association, 5717 Bessie Drive, Sarasota, FL 34233-2399.
