

Announcements from the Editor

Increased production costs and publication load compel us to seek additional sources of revenue if the Journal is to continue publishing all acceptable manuscripts. We therefore regretfully find it necessary to impose a handling charge of $25 for each manuscript submitted for consideration for publication. This handling charge will also have to be applied to all resubmitted papers. This action was taken reluctantly as an alternative to imposition of page charges, a practice currently followed by many journals.

This policy was instituted on August 1, 1975, and will be continued as long as these extra funds are needed for operation of the Journal.

The author submitting the manuscript will receive a bill together with an acknowledgment of receipt of the manuscript. Remittances should be made by check payable to Cancer Research, Inc., and sent to the Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. Hugh J. Creech, The Institute for Cancer Research, 7701 Burholme Avenue, Fox Chase, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19111. Foreign authors should remit in U.S. dollars.

Prompt payment of this charge will be deeply appreciated.

With this issue the Journal is adopting a new typeface, Helvetica, which we believe is an improvement over our former type. It is more modern and, in our judgment, more readable. We have also adopted with this issue a new improved system of photocomposition, called VIP, to replace our former Photon method. We would appreciate readers' comments on the quality of both typeface and composition.
