EHJ editorial board: changes in clinical trials team

Judith Ozkan

All correspondence relating to this article should be sent to cardiopulse@unicatt.it.

Changes to the Clinical Trials Team, see the departure of Stefan Anker MD, PhD of Charité University, Berlin, Germany as deputy editor and the appointment of a new US cardiologist as associate editor of EHJ. Harmony Reynolds MD of New York University, New York, will serve alongside Javed Butler of the University of Mississippi Medical Center in Jackson Mississippi, US (Figure 1).

Prof Anker’s service and contributions to the Journal during his tenure have been much valued by colleagues. Prof Anker’s immediate role has been filled by John Cleland MD of the University of Glasgow, UK who moves up to the position from his role as one of two previous associate editors.

Dr Reynolds received her medical degree from New York University Grossman School of Medicine in New York. She is currently director of New York University Langone’s Sarah Ross Soter Center for Women’s Cardiovascular Research and an associate professor in the department of medicine at NYU Grossman School of Medicine.

Dr Reynolds was part of the leadership of the Occluded Artery trial and two multi-centre, international clinical trials testing a pharmaceutical agent in cardiogenic shock. Currently she is the associate director of the Clinical Coordinating Center and Imaging Lead of the ISCHEMIA trial and the Principal Investigator of the Heart Attack Research Program in myocardial infarction and non-obstructive coronary arteries. She also served as the Principal Investigator of the CIAO-ISCHEMIA observational study in ischaemia and non-obstructive coronary artery disease.

Dr Reynolds is enthusiastic about her new role with the EHJ. She says: ‘The care and attention paid to each article at EHJ is special. Authors submitting to EHJ should know that we are committed to providing helpful feedback at every stage of the process. I look forward to contributing to the Clinical Trials team at EHJ.’