

Acknowledgments

Far too many people, places, and serendipitous moments have shaped this book to be able to mention them all. Playing at a Distance has traveled great distances, too, accompanying me during the most fervent times of my professional and personal life. It sat on endless flights between Scotland and Germany, traveled thousands of kilometers by train while I was searching for an academic home, and, in its final stages, ripened in the stagnant reality of the COVID-19 pandemic. Perhaps one of the most important times and locations for this project was years ago in Lüneburg, where as a post-doctoral researcher I met many inspiring media thinkers. I would like to start the long list of acknowledgments with one of them, who has become my life companion and the strongest support in the moments of doubt.

This book would have been very different—or may not have existed at all—had it not been for Anne Dippel. Our endless debates and intellectual “jam sessions” have laid foundations for central ideas developed on these pages. Only Anne knows how many freshly baked loaves of bread, mugs of coffee, and plates of soul-food delicacies helped me reach the finish line of what felt like a never-ending story. Our son, Milo Sander, made me see play with fresh, inquisitive eyes, generously allowing me to play with and alongside him, recharging the worn-out batteries of a parent in academia trying to juggle far too many balls simultaneously. I am thankful to our wonderful rainbow family for their support and for always bringing in good vibes—thank you, Hide and Imtiaz.

I would like to extend sincere thanks to Doug Sery for taking interest and a leap of faith in this work and giving me the power boost and freedom to write this book, and to Noah J. Springer for continuing this project and accompanying it to its successful end. The whole MIT Press editorial team has been invaluable. My special thanks go to Assistant Editor Liz Agresta, who has left no word unturned in making the best out of this manuscript.

Thank you to the reviewers who have provided me with the most insightful and critical feedback, pointing me toward unexplored thinkers such as the French philosopher Jacques Henriot.

I am grateful to my friend Monika Wasilewska for meticulously reading and editing every single endnote and bibliographical entry that appears on the last dozens of pages. Not every author is lucky enough to have such superb support.

Many friends and wonderful colleagues from the academic community have contributed as well; some directly, and others indirectly by allowing me to glide alongside their own lines of thought. Thank you to Seth Giddings, Melissa Kagen, Paolo Ruffino, Sebastian Möring, Darshana Jayemanne, Alenda Y. Chang, Mona Bozdog, Souvik Mukherjee, and many others. I am also grateful to Emilie Reed, Darshana Jayemanne, Zoyander Street, and the entire crew behind Critical Distance's "Keywords at Play" for giving me a platform to talk about many early concepts and ideas developed in this book.

Thank you to Gundolf S. Freyermuth and the Cologne Game Lab for welcoming me to their wonderful team in 2020 as an associate professor and giving me the peace of mind to finish this book. The students of Cologne Game Lab at TH Köln were the most vigilant gamers and inspiring discussion partners, and they gave me great examples to work with, including such wondrous and delightful games as Tiny Bookshop (2021), discussed in chapter 3.

I also want to thank all of my friends and colleagues for putting up with my belated email responses and far too few conversations, walks, and visits. Enrique Perez, thank you for your calmness, open ears, and the best ice cream to ice coat all the anxiety in the final year.

My former supervisor and friend Astrid Ensslin has always been an inspiring mentor to look up to.

I thank my family for always believing in me. Special thanks go to my sister, Anna; my mother, Jadwiga; my father, Mariusz; and both of my grandparents, who almost prophetically used to call me their "little scholar."

And finally, in a posthuman gesture, I thank the stars for being on my side, the River Tay in Scotland for endowing me with the most inspirational views from a "room of my own" in which to write, and the comforting buzz of my new home city of Berlin for putting things back into perspective.

This is a section of doi:10.7551/mitpress/13605.001.0001

Playing at a Distance

Borderlands of Video Game Aesthetic

By: Sonia Fizek

Citation:

Playing at a Distance: Borderlands of Video Game Aesthetic

By: Sonia Fizek

DOI: 10.7551/mitpress/13605.001.0001

ISBN (electronic): 9780262372190

Publisher: The MIT Press

Published: 2022

The open access edition of this book was made possible by generous funding and support from MIT Press Direct to Open

The MIT Press

© 2022 Massachusetts Institute of Technology

This work is subject to a Creative Commons CC-BY-NC-ND license.

Subject to such license, all rights are reserved.

The MIT Press would like to thank the anonymous peer reviewers who provided comments on drafts of this book. The generous work of academic experts is essential for establishing the authority and quality of our publications. We acknowledge with gratitude the contributions of these otherwise uncredited readers.

This book was set in Stone Serif and Stone Sans by Jen Jackowitz. Printed and bound in the United States of America.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Names: Fizek, Sonia, author.

Title: Playing at a distance : borderlands of video game aesthetic / Sonia Fizek.

Description: Cambridge, Massachusetts : The MIT Press, [2022] | Includes bibliographical references and index.

Identifiers: LCCN 2022000758 (print) | LCCN 2022000759 (ebook) | ISBN 9780262544627 (paperback) | ISBN 9780262372183 (ebook) | ISBN 9780262372190 (pdf)

Subjects: LCSH: Video games—Design. | Aesthetics.

Classification: LCC GV1469.3 .F56 2022 (print) | LCC GV1469.3 (ebook) | DDC 794.8/3—dc23/eng/20220603

LC record available at <https://lccn.loc.gov/2022000758>

LC ebook record available at <https://lccn.loc.gov/2022000759>

10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1