African Affairs is published for the Royal African Society by the Oxford University Press. Members of the Society should deal directly with the Secretary of the Royal African Society.

African Affairs is the journal of the Royal African Society of the UK and the top ranked journal in African Studies. In continuous publication since 1901, it is probably the world’s oldest journal concerning current events in Africa. Published four times a year, it is an inter-disciplinary journal that contains articles on a wide variety of subjects of interest to anyone who follows contemporary events in Africa — politics and international relations, sociology, anthropology, economics, and to the extent that they inform debates on the state of contemporary Africa, history, literature, art, music and more. A peer reviewed journal, it is widely read by academics, policy makers, diplomats and others with a serious interest in the continent.

African Affairs is the top-ranked African Studies journal as measured by impact factor. The latest (2017) Journal Citation Reports® show African Affairs’ impact factor to be 2.500, placing it 2/68 journals within Area Studies and 29/169 journals in Political Science. The impact factor is a ratio of citation to articles published, and it shows the average number of times recent articles in African Affairs were cited within the relevant year (2017). The journal’s five-year impact factor stands at 3.158, making it the second highest ranked journal in Area Studies over this period. The five-year impact factor is calculated in the same way as the standard impact factor, except the standard two-year window for inclusion of articles is extended to five years.

Abstracting and indexing services: Articles appearing in African Affairs are abstracted in The Library of the African Studies Centre, Leiden, the Netherlands; America: History and Life; Historical Abstracts; British Humanities Index; Social Science Citation Index; Current Contents/Social and Behavioural Sciences; Geobase, Research Alert; Social SciSearch; International Political Science Abstracts; and Anthropological Index Online.
