mixed results regarding the association between quality and COVID-19 outcomes in LTCFs. Most studies found that higher quality is generally indicative of better COVID-19 outcomes, and some further suggested that the association varied across pandemic phases. Whereas another 7 studies found no significant relationship. This systematic review highlights the need for future research and evidenced-based policy and practice to better protect the at-risk LTCF resident population.