Colorectal cancer
M. Ponz de Leon (ed). Springer-Verlag, Berlin/Heidelberg, 2002, 303 pp, €99.95, £70.00, US$119.00

This is that unusual modern beast, a single authorial volume, written following a working lifetime’s observation of the disease. As the author himself points out, the limitations are that the separate chapters may lack the most up-to-date information, balanced positively by the uniformity of style throughout. At around 300 pages this is entirely readable and would be a useful text for undergraduates and trainees.
