The American Journal of Hypertension is a monthly, peer-reviewed journal that provides a forum for scientific inquiry of the highest standards in the field of hypertension and related cardiovascular disease. The journal publishes high-quality original research and review articles on basic sciences, molecular biology, clinical and experimental hypertension, cardiology, epidemiology, pediatric hypertension, endocrinology, neurophysiology, and nephrology.
The Effects of Renal Sympathetic Denervation on Hypothalamic Mitogen-Activated Protein Kinase and NF-κB in Spontaneously Hypertensive Rats
Li Wang, Cheng-zhi Lu, Yi-jie Ma, Meng-ping Xv, Zhu-qing Li, and Chao Li

Arachidonic Acid Induces Human Podocyte Apoptosis
Yang-bin Pan, Shi-xiang Zhen, Hong-tin Ke, Guo-hua Ding, and Jian-xin Wan

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR - ONLINE ONLY

Associations Among Plasma Total Homocysteine Levels, Circadian Blood Pressure Variation, and Endothelial Function in Hypertension
Kazushi Tsuda

Response to “Associations Among Plasma Total Homocysteine Levels, Circadian Blood Pressure Variation, and Endothelial Function in Hypertension”
Yi-Fei Dong, Qiong-Yan Hao, Zhao-Hui Ruan, Zi-Xuan Xu, Bi-Ming Zhang, Ming Deng, Da-Wei Chen, Ye-Qing Zou, Jing Chen, Ping Li, and Xiao-Shu Cheng

APPLICATIONS

To apply for the John Laragh Research Award, applicants will submit the below documents online on the Oxford University Press American Journal of Hypertension website. Please register and login as ‘author’ and submit through the John Laragh Research Award type.

Documents to submit:
1. Curriculum vitae
2. Documentation demonstrating their age
3. Two to three page letter of application detailing their contributions
4. Two letters of support from recognized prominent scientists in the field of hypertension or related research. One of the letters should be from someone who is not at the applicant’s institution.

The deadline for applications is December 1, 2018.

AWARD

The award will consist of a plaque and an award of USD 5,000.

On receiving notice of the award, the awardee will be invited to submit a manuscript to the American Journal of Hypertension reviewing his or her work, following the instructions to authors for reviews on the journal website.

APPLY NOW at bit.ly/SubmitAJH

Questions? edit@ajhypertens.org